“David Weiss: Drawings”

Famed for being half of the irreverent conceptualist art duo Fischli/Weiss, David Weiss started out on his own, creating these works on paper between the late 1960s and early '80s. Together, they suggest what might have happened had Weiss not teamed up with Peter Fischli. Influenced by Sigmar Polke, German Expressionism and Zap Comix, Weiss renderings are at once refined and cartoonish, formalist and Pop.
